A Slow Food Brisbane 2018 Event

Terra Madre Day is an occasion to remember that food means enjoyment, culture and conviviality and that the act of sharing food, learning about it and eating it together can influence our values and attitude.

Food for thought and more – an invitation to bring food to share.

In the spirit of sharing and learning about our diverse food heritage, we invite you to bring a small plate of simple food, if you wish, that carries your own food “story” to add to the wonderful food platters provided on the day.

We would love to know something about the plate of food you bring to share and encourage you to include a brief note about where it came from, who grew it, who nurtured the recipe, who prepared it or what pleasure, tradition or treasured memory it invokes for you.

Uncertain what to bring? Please give us a call on 0408 637 791 or email us at slowfoodbrisbaneinc@gmail.com.

“Putting children in touch with taste education in the school day”.

Jayne Aguir and Dani Phelan (teachers) will share the inspiration drawn from the international Terra Madre Event in Turin in September, 2018.

They will excite you with their stories of how the children are putting taste education into the school day.

Terra Madre Day brings together all who share the vision of a food system that supports local economies, that respects the environment, protects biodiversity, taste, and tradition. A better alternative is possible!
